VICE PRESIDENT SHERMAN UNCONSCIOUS WHEN END CAME LAST NIGHT AT 9:42

Death Relieved Suffering After He Had Made a Brave Fight Through Long Illness

DEMISE FOLLOWED A SLIGHT CHANGE FOR BETTER

Distinguished Patient Victim of Bright's Disease, Heart Disease and Arterio-Sclerosis—Did Not Desire Re-nomination But Accepted on Account of Loyalty to Party—took No Active Part in the Campaign.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The funeral of Vice President James S. Sherman will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in the First Presbyterian church. In addition to the funeral, it is possible that there also will be private services at the Sherman house at an earlier hour Saturday, for the benefit of the members of the family exclusively. The wish for such a course has been expressed by some of the members of the household, who are averse to appearing at so public a place as the church.

The funeral sermon will be preached by the Rev. Louis H. Holden, who was Mr. Sherman's pastor. Sergeant-at-Arms M. Ransdel, of the senate, has telegraphed that 50 members of the senate will attend. The president's cabinet and many members of the house of representatives are also expected.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Shortly after noon President Taft signed a formal proclamation announcing the vice president's death, providing for observances and paying a tribute to Mr. Sherman's life and works. Col. Daniel N. Ransdel, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, transmitted it to senators as the official notification of the death of their presiding officer. President Taft will leave Washington late tomorrow for Utica to attend the funeral of Vice President Sherman. The president will go in a private car and will be accompanied by some of his aides and secretaries.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 31.—After a long illness, Vice President James Schoolcraft Sherman died at his home in this city at 9:42 last night, of uremic poison caused by Bright's disease.

Mr. Sherman had been sinking since early morning and it was realized that death was a question of only a few hours.

There was slight relief shortly after 7, caused by an apparent improvement of the condition of the kidneys, but it did not prove real or lasting and at best gave only temporary relief.

At 9 the patient's temperature rose to 106. From that time his condition rapidly passed from bad to worse until the end. Mr. Sherman was unconscious when the end came and had been in that condition for hours.

All the members of the immediate family were witnesses to the final scene. In addition to Mrs. Sherman there were in the death chamber, their three sons, Sherrill, Richard U. and Thomas M. Sherman, and their wives; R. M. and Sanford Sherman, brothers of Mr. Sherman, and Mrs. L. B. Moore and Mrs. H. J. Cockinham, sisters of Mr. Sherman. Soon after Mr. Sherman's death Dr. Fayette H. Peck, the attending physician, issued the following statement:

"The vice president died at 9:42 p. m. without regaining consciousness for a moment. He was perfectly unconscious since 7 o'clock, when he had a period of partial consciousness lasting for about 15 minutes. He died in a uremic coma as a result of Bright's disease, heart disease and arteriosclerosis.

Mr. Sherman's rapid decline in health dated from his speech accepting the nomination for vice president. The exertion of delivering his address began to tell on him a day or two later.

It had been Dr. Peck's hope that he might stimulate the kidneys as to cause them to resume their functions, but when he was compelled to acknowledge his failure in this respect he surrendered, frankly acknowledging that the fight was lost. Since then he has devoted his efforts to keeping his patient quiet and preventing suffering. His constant fear has been that the uremic poison in his patient's system would cause convulsions, which would result in instant death, and he succeeded in warding them off.

The doctor was with his patient during the day, but did little for him beyond administering oxygen and giving him an occasional hypodermic injection of morphine.

Due both to the presence or excessive uremic acid and to the sedatives employed, Mr. Sherman had lain in a state of coma through the greater part of the day. Only twice did he throw off the dense stupor which enthralled him. On neither of these occasions was he conscious for more than a few minutes. Luring one of the intervals of consciousness he got out of bed and stood on the floor for a brief period. His weakness was such, however, that he was soon compelled to lie down, a circumstance which in itself marked the rapid advance of his malady. Yesterday he walked about his room a great deal and in his delirium insisted upon going down the street. While in his right mind yesterday he recognized both Mrs. Sherman and Dr. Peck and spoke in familiar and endearing terms to both.

All day long the Sherman home and the local newspaper offices were deluged with inquiries by telegraph and telephone concerning the condition of the vice president. Reports of the death had been widespread and one telegram of condolence was received at 6 o'clock. About 3 o'clock an unidentified woman called the fire department of the city and telling the officials that Mr. Sherman was dead, she informed them that she had the sanction of the family for asking them to toll the city hall bell for him.

Mr. Sherman's rapid decline in health dates from Aug. 21, when he was formally notified of his nomination as vice president, according to Dr. Peck. He was warned that the exertion incident to the ceremonies might have an ill effect, but he insisted that the program as arranged be carried out.

"You must know all about medicine," Mr. Sherman told his physician, when he urged him to arrange for a brief and informal notification. "but you don't know about politics." "It was against my advice," said Dr. Peck tonight, "that Mr. Sherman participated in the formalities of the notification ceremonies. I suggested that it would be better for him to receive the committee in the parlor of his home, telling them briefly that while he did not want a re-nomination, he would accept in a spirit of loyalty and let that suffice. When it became apparent he would not yield to my suggestion I urged him to make a speech of not more than

B. & O. OFFICIALS WITH PLANS FOR THE SUBWAY TO BE HERE SATURDAY

Superintendent Cahill Thursday afternoon notified Safety Director Collier that engineers and officials of the B. & O. railroad would be in the city Saturday morning with the plans for the proposed subways in South Newark.

An appointment was made with City Solicitor Roderic Jones and Mr. Collier to meet the officials Saturday to discuss the plans. Mr. Collier will delay his proposed action to compel the railroads to observe the six-miles an hour speed limit ordinance pending the result of this conference. His ultimatum to the railroad officials several weeks ago gave them to Nov. 1 to report on the plans or have the speed limit ordinance enforced to the letter.

CHAS. CONWAY AND WIFE CAPTURED IN LIMA TODAY AT THE CADILLAC HOTEL

Lima, O., Oct. 31.—A man and woman, who said they were Charles N. Conway and wife, wanted in connection with the murder of Sofia G. Singer at Chicago, were arrested here today. Both denied they had anything to do with the murder. The arrest took place about ten o'clock at the Cadillac hotel, by Chief Vermillion and a squad of officers.

"I admit that I am the man the police are looking for," Conway told the police, "but I deny that I have any knowledge of the crime in connection with which they want me."

The police say Conway declared that the body of Miss Singer must have been put in his room in the Chicago apartments after he and his wife left the city Monday night.

Mrs. Joseph Cramer, whom the police believe to be Conway's mother, lives here.

According to Chief Vermillion, Conway admitted that he had known the Singer woman. He said that as soon as he heard that she had been murdered, he and Mrs. Conway left Chicago, spending some time in several small Indiana and Ohio towns. The Conways came to Lima from Piqua, Ohio and registered at the Cadillac hotel as "Charles N. Conway and wife." It was through the name on the register that the police first learned of their being here.

Conway and his wife told the police here that the last person they saw when they left their boarding house in Chicago was Miss Singer, who gave Mrs. Conway $25 and two suits of clothes. Mrs. Conway said that Miss Singer told her that she (Miss Singer) was going to break off with William Worthen, the man who claims to have been Miss Singer's sweetheart, and said that the two suits of clothes were given her by Worthen. Mrs. Conway also tells of the arrival at the boarding house on the night before the murder of a stranger, said to be Claud Stillman, who said he had an engagement with Miss Singer on the night she was murdered. The Chicago police are expected to arrive here today.

BULGARIAN ARMY HAS DEFEATED 200,000 TURKS AFTER THREE DAYS' FIGHT

London, Oct. 31.—The Bulgarian army has completely defeated a Turkish force estimated at 200,000 men, at Lule Burgas, after three days' terrific fighting, according to a news agency dispatch from Sofia. The Bulgarian cavalry is pursuing the fleeing Turks.

Whatever the result of the great battle now being fought between the Turkish and Bulgarian armies in the eastern part of the Balkan peninsula, its conclusion probably will give occasion for the intervention of the European powers. In dispatches from Vienna, it is reported that the foreign ministers of the European governments have reached a tentative agreement in this matter, and in any event the entry of Bulgarian troops into Constantinople will not be tolerated by the powers. Even Russia is disinclined to permit such an occurrence. It is also understood in diplomatic quarters in the Austrian capital that the Balkan nations already have made known, in an official manner, that they are prepared to accept the intervention by the powers at any moment now.

The Turkish army, after its defeat at Lule Burgas, retreated toward Tchnatalja. Adrianople is completely hemmed in by the Bulgarian troops.

The battle at Lule Burgas, which is regarded as the most important engagement since the beginning of the war, lasted three entire days. It extended along the line from Lule Burgas eastward to Serai. The Turkish front was over 31 miles long. The Ottoman troops retreated to Tchoria, about 21 miles to the south of the positions from which they were driven by the Bulgarians.

VOTER MAY USE AN ELECTION GUIDE

Secretary of State Graves has ruled that a voter has the legal right to take with him into the election booth a fac-simile copy of the ballot clipped from a newspaper and previously marked by him to guide him in his voting.

SHOCK KILLED HOTEL KEEPER

New York, Oct. 31.—Walter Morris, manager of the Hotel San Remo, died early today from heart failure, brought on by shock at learning of the death of Vice President Sherman. While walking home with his wife he heard the news of the vice president's death and fell unconscious into his wife's arms.

JUDGES CHOSEN FOR THE BOYS' CORN CONTEST

At Wednesday's meeting of the board of county commissioners, A. H. Powell and Edward Pound were appointed judges for the boys' corn contest. This contest is arranged by the state board of agriculture from funds contributed by public-spirited citizens and organizations in the different counties of the state. In the counties where funds are provided the contest is held under rules prescribed by the state board and the prizes to the successful corn grower is a trip to Washington on the "Buckeye Boys' Corn Special." The "special" will be a train that will carry the Buckeye boys to the national capital on a sightseeing trip which will be directed by experienced men.

The rules of the contest restrict the product judged to corn grown by boys on one-acre plots and prescribe to manner of selecting and judging the samples.

SENATOR BACON WILL PRESIDE OVER SENATE

Numerous telephone calls have been received by the Advocate during the day, requesting information as to the successor of Vice President Sherman in that office. There will be no vice president of the United States until one is regularly elected and inaugurated. Senator Augustus O. Bacon, from Georgia, who has been presiding officer of the senate for the past several months, during the illness of the late vice president, will continue as the director of the activities of that body of legislators. The Georgia was chosen as president pro tempore following the death of the late Senator Frye, although the office has also been occupied by other senators, none of whom has been able to command a sufficient Democratic majority to retain it. Should President Taft die before his term of office expires, the natural succession would ensue, the secretary of state becoming president until the following election.

This was the procedure when Col. Roosevelt became president upon the death of McKinley. Senator Prye serving as president pro tempore of the senate until the next regular election, when Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, was elected vice president, and assumed the duties contingent upon his election.

ROOSEVELT GIVEN GREAT DEMONSTRATION

New York, Oct. 31.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt last night faced, for an hour and 20 minutes, a Progressive political rally which gave many thousands of his fellow New Yorkers a chance to accord him an uproarious welcome.

For 42 minutes after his entrance into crowded Madison Square Garden, Colonel Roosevelt stood at the edge of the high-perched speakers' platform, unable to make himself heard above the din of cheers, songs and hand music. His gestures to the crowd for silence served only to intensify the noises, and when, after 20 minutes of cheering, Colonel Roosevelt made a determined effort to begin his speech, the immense audience was swung off into another period of cheering by the beginning of the chant, "We want Teddy." "We want Teddy."

Colonel Roosevelt refused to sit down or to leave the rail that edged the flimsy platform. Senator Dixon and Governor Johnson urged him to be seated, but he maintained his standing position throughout the entire demonstration, and when opportunity finally came for him to begin his speech, he began it with a request to the police to maintain order.

The attention and the silence that greeted the address by Colonel Roosevelt was as marked as the demonstration that preceded it. At the first attempts to interrupt by applause the colonel motioned imperatively with his left hand for silence, and he accompanied this gesture with a shake of the head, which made the crowd realize his desire to be allowed to speak without interruption.

The immense garden was crowded to its doors and thousands of persons were turned away. Ticket speculators reaped a rich harvest from the sale of tickets to Colonel Roosevelt's Madison Square Garden meeting last night and it has appeared today that no action against them is possible under the ticket speculation ordinance, which has proved effective in the cases of theatres and ball parks. A court magistrate says that a political meeting is not a "performance or amusement" within the meaning of the city ordinance. The price for seats were from $5 to $8, while standing room checks were quoted at $2 each.

DEMOCRATIC CENTRAL AND EX. COM. MEETING

JAMES J. HILL, Chairman.
R. E. M'GONAGLE, Secretary.

"The bee-hive hat is to go." Still, gentlemen with political aspirations will make any old kind answer the purpose.

If there is any single phenomenon in all human philosophy in the face of which man is absolutely helpless, it is the mystery of death and the possibilities of the life that is to follow our departure from this earthly vale. Our modern civilization is too prone to spend its days in money-making and its nights in merry-making without a proper consideration of the things which are eternal, and in this tendency is to be found the reason for the dry rot that has been eating at a cancer into the very vitals of our national life. We must either begin to give honor to the things that are of God, or we must accept the condemnation of eternal doom that He proffers as the only alternative. Christianity has not always been in Newark; it is only beginning to come into the lives of the citizenry. Christ has been here, pleading that His voice might be heard and that men might forsake their sins, but even the professing Christians have not kept their vows of allegiance; they have been traitors to His cause in the fullest meaning of the word. Christianity lies in the acceptance and obedience of the Christ, and until this is manifested in the lives of every man and woman in Newark, the cause of Jesus Christ cannot be considered to have reached a satisfactory flood-tide in its tremendous power to save.

These facts are beginning to gain their due recognition, and the things of eternal value are only beginning to receive their due consideration. It was with this new-found spirit, that an audience of five thousand persons last night listened to one of Dr. Lyon's ablest sermons on "Death and the Judgment." The subject was announced at the last moment as a change from the evangelist's original intention to deliver a discourse upon the theme of "The Open Door," the dispatches containing news of the impending death of Vice President Sherman causing Dr. Lyon to bring before his audience a matter which demanded their most urgent deliberation. The change proved a splendid one, from the standpoint of revival results, for over a hundred men and women accepted Jesus Christ during the meeting, the converts taking their definite stand for the Master within half an hour of the time of Vice President Sherman's death. The coincidence of the hours when souls were garnered into the eternal harvest was noted by many.

Splendid Delegations Present.
Last night's audience included three splendid delegations, over 300 members of the local Odd Fellows lodges, about a hundred of the Rebekahs and a score of local insurance men, the latter occupying seats on the platform. These delegations were cordially welcomed by the Christian workers as well as by Dr. Lyon, and their presence was a source of great interest and benefit.

The speakers of the evening were City Solicitor Roderic Jones, Probate Judge Robbins Hunter, who is a candidate for re-election and Attorney Henry C. Ashcraft.

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR CAMPAIGNS ARE INCREASING

Washington, Oct. 31.—Campaign contributions to both the Republican and Democratic national committees neared the $1,000,000 mark during the last week. Supplemental reports filed today with the clerk of the House of Representatives show that since the first reports were made about a week ago the total Republican contributions have been increased to $744,688 and the Democratic contributions to $815,052. In addition to that, the Democratic National committee has borrowed $40,000.

ence was assuredly an inspiration throughout the evening. In the musical offerings, their voices were of splendid assistance, particularly in the "Church in the Wildwood," sung by the men of the big choir, with a chorus by the visiting Odd Fellows, and in "America," the hymn of the Rebekahs. "Onward, Christian Soldiers," its martial strains sounding a firm challenge to the hosts of evil, was the melody to which the two larger delegations entered the building, and was a splendid prelude to the great "Glory Song," that rousing hymn of praise that cannot fail to arouse the most dormant spark of enthusiasm in the breast of one who has ever learned how to "carry a tune."

The evening prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Root and was a fervent petition to the Almighty for recognition and the creation of a spirit of receptivity in the hearts of Newark's men and women. A single verse of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" served as an

MAN REPULSED SHOOTS WOMEN; NOW IN JAIL

Napoleon, O., Oct. 31.—Mrs. Goldie Garner Childs, 24, divorced, of Liberty Center, is lying at the point of death from gun shot wounds inflicted last night by Oscar Sharp, 35. Her sister, Mrs. John Hauser, of Prairie Depot, was injured, not seriously, by being struck over the head with an iron bar by Sharp. The latter was captured today by Sheriff Jackson and is in jail here. Sharp is said to have tried to be attentive to Mrs. Childs. He intercepted the women as they left the home of their mother Mrs. Garner, near Liberty Center, where Mrs. Childs lived. Mrs. Hauser interposed and Sharp struck her. As she fell he drew a revolver, shot Mrs. Childs and fled.

DEMOCRATS HAD ROUSING MEETING

The meeting place of the Democracy of Licking county for the political rally of Wednesday night was at Linnville, and the village and countryside vied with one another in turning out a record crowd. Enthusiasm greeted both the speakers and their messages, and everything that goes to make up the success of a campaign rally assisted in making the meeting one of exceptional interest and benefit.

The speakers of the evening were City Solicitor Roderic Jones, Probate Judge Robbins Hunter, who is a candidate for re-election and Attorney Henry C. Ashcraft.

FOR DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR OR ITCHY SCALP-- 25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your hair! Danderine destroys dandruff and stops falling hair at once—Grows hair, we prove it.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous you must use Danderine, because nothing else accomplishes so much for the hair.

Just one application of Knowlton's Danderine will double the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, don't hesitate, but get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? A 25 cent bottle will truly amaze you.

five minutes. Instead he spoke for more than half an hour. Two days later the exertions of notification day began to tell on the patient and he began to fail.

Dr. Peck said the vice president apparently had not worried over the outcome of the campaign.

"His peace of mind has been more disturbed over his illness, as several of his relatives have died from the same disease," continued the physician. "Mr. Sherman did not want a re-nomination, but he was loyal and accepted it with the understanding that he was not to take an active part in the campaign."

When his name was being considered as a candidate for the vice presidency by the Republican national convention, Mr. Sherman consulted Dr. Peck as to whether he would better accept because of his physical condition, but the doctor told him he did not care to advise him on so grave a question.

SKETCH OF LIFE; ONLY VICE PRES. EVER RENOMINATED

The twenty-seventh vice president of the United States and the only one re-nominated, was christened James Schoolcraft Sherman. But in nearly a quarter of a century of public life, "Jim" Sherman was known to his intimates, and probably half the nation referred to him as "Sunny Jim," a sobriquet he earned, as one well might imagine, by a never-failing, all-year-round sunny disposition.

Sherman belonged to the school of Republicans nowadays popularly called "regulars," and he fought his political battles shoulder to shoulder with men of his faith without compromise or flinching. Like every public man he had critics, some bitter, but he also had friends who were a match for his enemies. The events he helped to shape are so comparatively recent that history cannot assign to him his proper place until it also records the work of his contemporaries.

To the house of representatives of the Fifty-fifth Congress he came in the winter of 1887, just passed his 27th birthday, with the energy and optimism of youth, college-bred from the halls of Hamilton, which has given to public life many other statesmen and public figures, none without some mark of distinction. He had been elected mayor of Utica two years before. Like many others who came to lead in the national legislature, he brought with him an education in law. His father, Richard U. Sherman, was an editor and public figure in New York state.

Two sessions of congress found Sherman defeated and out of office but not for long. Henry W. Bentley, of Booneville, Onondaga county, beat him by less than 1000 votes in the race for the Fifty-second Congress. In the interim, Sherman went back to Utica, built up his law practice, and returned to the Fifty-third Congress with a signal victory. He remained in the house without defeat to the Sixtyth Congress, when he was nominated and elected vice president on the ticket with Mr. Taft.

Sherman's first years in the house brought him into close association with leaders. Joseph W. Bailey, later a senator; Breckenridge Bryan, Bonkre Cockran, Crisp, Dalzell, Dingler, Dooliver, Henderson, Payne, Paynter, Raynor, Reed, Wadsworth, "Fighting Joe" Wheeler and a score of others, whose names became household words in discussion of the tariff and other national policies, were his fellows. The senate held such men as Aldrich, Allison, Cockrell, Daniel, Frye, Gorman, Hoar, Hill, Teller, Vest and Wolcott. All were not Republicans, but all were Sherman's friends, and in such an environment he worked to a high place in the councils and finally was number one of the Big Five in the house.

Cannons, Dalzell, Payne, Sherman and Tawney were the great quintet during the comparatively recent years in which congress was Republican. Each of them invariably wore a red carnation for a boutonniere, and when Sherman went to preside over the senate and occupy the corner of the capitol he took the custom with him and the flower always appeared at every session of the upper house.

Any review of Sherman's life would not be complete without a reference to his work in the house. Briefly, there is recorded no time when he moved galleries to applause by a debate from the floor, or changed any votes by eloquence. But the statutes bear marks of his work in committee and caucus, and the results of his labors on the rules committee, the interstate commerce committee and other branches of the machinery of the house, where the real legislation is done, while speeches prevail upon the floor.

In New York state politics he was a leading figure. He was known in other states. His appearance in campaigns, state and national, were not infrequent. He was at one time chairman of the Republican congressional committee. He always was active in the New York state Republican conventions and a figure at all national gatherings of the party.

Sherman went to preside over the senate just about at a time when what popularly is known as senatorial dignity was beginning to feel its first break. In the chair, Sherman was dignity itself, fair in his rulings, his colleagues said, quiet, firm, sure and seldom reversed on an appeal. But dignity, so far as the traditional senatorial frock coat and silk hat were concerned, generally was absent. He regarded his time presiding over the senate as a day's business to be attended to as if he were sitting in his bank at Utica or at the directors' table of one of the many enterprises in which he had found a fortune and laid the foundation of another one for his sons. He usually appeared in a business suit, on a hot day he came in flannels, on a very hot day a palm leaf fan displaced the gavel and perhaps a glass of lemonade topped off the book of rules. Other senators, reluctant, perhaps, to transgress such custom, fell in with his ideas and nowadays, on a blistering Washington summer day, the senate chamber looks quite like a business body.

The illness which proved fatal was little known of in Washington until the last few months. Mr. Sherman was not present during closing days of the last session, and the senate, without a president pro tem, by the death of Mr. Frye, and unable to agree upon a successor, got along by temporary agreements placing some senator in the chair for two weeks at a time. When he disappeared, seeking rest and health in rain, Sherman was genuinely missed about the capitol, in the departments, at the White House, where he was a frequent caller and always exchanged a new joke with President Taft, and on the streets where he often walked. In a hurry, he used a motor, but it was an occurrence of the ordinary with congress in session to meet Sherman walking down Pennsylvania avenue, often alone, rosy-cheeked and cheerful, returning the salutations of scores who knew him by sight, thought of him as "Sunny Jim," and greeted him with "Good Morning, Mr. President," and the passerby who recognized him was greeted as heartily as the senator who might be next.

Vice President Sherman was born in Utica Oct. 24, 1855. He was married in 1881 to Carrie Babcock, of East Orange, N. J. They have three sons, Sherrill, Richard U. and Thomas M., all living and in business in Utica. The vice president was an Elk, a trustee of Hamilton College, a member of the Dutch Reformed church, a member of many clubs and a business man of wide interests.

OHIO BRIEFS

Sandusky—A bottle of champagne, the product of a local wine company, was used in christening the super-dreadnaught New York yesterday. According to a report, this is the first bottle of American wine ever used in christening one of Uncle Sam's war vessels.

Dayton—A movement backed by the Chamber of Commerce to ask council for an emergency appropriation of $5,000 was launched yesterday. The money is needed to stamp out the diphtheria epidemic.

Cambridge—Pauline Kiger, aged 17, was taken off a train here by police officers. She told the police she was to meet her father in Pittsburgh and expected to make her home with him. Her parents are separated.

Piquette—The business men's club of this city are ready for the big Halloween parade and festival given under their auspices tonight.

Chillicothe—Local fruit growers are campaigning to have a government weather station established here.

Cleveland—The efforts of Mayor Baker and the city council to make changes in the city's street car service, may result in a termination of the franchise ordinance giving the city three-cent fares.

Marion—The thirteenth annual convention of District 8, Pythian Sisters, is in session here.

Cuyahoga Falls—The city jail is without an occupant. The numerous drunks have apparently reformed, because the jail is empty for the first time in months.

The Rt. Rev. Vincent, D. D., at Trinity Church.

The Rt. Rev. Boyd Vincent, D. D., Bishop of Southern Ohio, will make his annual visitation of Trinity church this city on Sunday evening next. There will be confirmation and the Bishop will preach. The service will begin at 7:30. The usual vesper service at 5:00 p. m. will be omitted. This will probably be Bishop Vincent's final visit to this parish as a Bishop-coadjutor is to be elected in Cincinnati December 4, and the administration of the parishes in this part of the diocese will be turned over to him.

Bishop Vincent occupies a warm place in the hearts of Newark people and doubtless a large congregation will greet him.

TABERNACLE

introduction to Dr. Lyon, who was greeted by a spontaneous outburst of applause as he took charge of the meeting. After reading portions of the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians, verses 1-6, 12-20, and 46-58, Dr. Lyon welcomed the visiting delegations and announced his change of subject for the evening.

"We are glad to note that almost universally the business men of this city who are in favor of righteousness and godliness are going to close their places of business Thursday afternoon for the afternoon mass meeting in this tabernacle," he said. "More than one hundred of the business houses of Newark are showing their interest and showing on what side their influence counts to count—on the side of Jesus Christ and the Christian life. Not all of these men have as yet come out on the Lord's side, but the very fact of these business men's closing their stores is evidence of their appreciation of the work that is being done, and of their interest in the cause of righteousness and purity and godliness. I want you to note these men and stand by them; give them your support in every way you can, for a man that shows the interest in the cause of Christ that these have is a good man to do business with, a good man to support and a good man to have as a citizen in your midst."

Friendship, Love and Truth.

"We are glad to see these splendid delegations here tonight. They have a splendid motto, these Odd Fellows, Friendship, Love and Truth. Friendship for the needy, friendship for the suffering, but men and women, if we are to be friends in the very best sense of the word, we have to be friends with that Friend that sticketh closer than a brother, Jesus Christ. You have stood for love and have manifested this affection for one another, but not until we let the love of Jesus Christ in our hearts can we love to the fullest and best sense. It's a great thing to stand for truth. Know the truth and the truth shall make you free, and Jesus said, I am the truth, and we cannot know the truth unless we know it through Jesus Christ. If you are consistent in your interest in the things that are pure and upright and honorable I hope and pray that all of you will do as many have done—come out definitely for Jesus Christ. You will make better friends, better members of your organization, better brothers, better sisters, and then when the end of life comes you can be sure that you have done your best, you have fought a good fight and have kept the faith."

Dr. Lyon also welcomed the insurance men, stating that there is no business where a man has to be so everlastingly at it all the time as in writing insurance. He declared that if he had his way every theological student would have to write insurance for a year, for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the manner of approaching people and maintaining sweetness of spirit. "A man may have a stock of goods and loaf on the side lines and still sell some things, but a man has to be a hustler to be an insurance man," he added. "What we want is to have men just like that out in the service of Jesus Christ."

The evangelist's voice assumed an unusual solemnity that demanded the closest attention of his audience as he told of his desire to change the theme of his discourse for the evening. "I feel impelled," he said "on account of the impending death of the vice president of the United States, and some other things that have come into your life today, to change my subject for this evening, and I will speak to you tonight on 'Death and the Judgment,' and I want you to, if you have ever prayed in service, to pray that the spirit of God may rest on every heart, and that the speaker may speak as he ought to speak, and each of us may hear and heed in such a way that we may be glad that we did, when we stand at the judgment bar of God."

After that the judgment.

At the close of a splendid solo, "Shadows, No Need of Shadows," one of the most impressive numbers used in connection with the present campaign and to which Mrs. Powell gave her fullest possible interpretation, Dr. Lyon asked for a few moments of silent prayer, and as God reverently bowed, he asked God for strength to speak as though it were to be the last message he should deliver on this earth, and also to help everyone to think and act as if before tomorrow's sun should dawn, he should face God at the judgment. The text for the evening, he announced, was Hebrews 9:27, "And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment."

"If I were going to speak to you tonight about art or music or agriculture or politics or finance I might interest a portion of my hearers, but perhaps some would not be interested in the other theme. We have a subject which everyone, young or old, ought to deeply feel. It is the subject of death and the judgment. Death strikes down as it strikes a child in its innocence, and as it strikes a hero in his strength. All of us must die. Herodotus in his history of Greece said that when that great general Xerxes was leading a million men for the subjugation of the Attic states, that one day, seated upon his throne, he was reviewing his army, and the courtiers saw that the general was in tears, and they said, 'Oh, King, why weepst thou?' And Xerxes said, 'Because I know that within a hundred years every one of these great soldiers, a million men, will have passed to the grave. You and I, like trees of the forest, marked for the felling, all of us must die. It is said of a famous Persian divine that he was accustomed to stop in the midst of his sermons and call the roll of the great philosophers and poets and orators and statesmen, and after each name he would pause for a reply. At the close of the list he would say, 'Brothers, there is no response. They are all dead.' The very fact of the certainty of death and the grave ought to create in our minds a feeling of fraternity. You and I, rich and poor, high and low, young and old, ignorant and educated, all of us pass into life and down the one path that leads to the grave."

The Fraternity in Death.

"It is said that after the battle of Chancellorsville, the evening came on and the stillness of night was broken only by the moaning of the wounded and the dying. On the battle field there lay two men, fatally wounded. Their companies had been pitted against one another in that awful day of carnage. They had fought like heroes on that battle field, but in their suffering they drew near in sympathy a man wearing the blue and one wearing the gray. The northern man told of his home in the pines of Michigan, about the aged parents waiting for his return, and that sweet heart to whom he had pledged vows of love he never could fulfill, and then that southern man told of the brown-eyed wife and the brown-eyed children, down beneath the palmetto and the cypress of the south. They mingled their blood and tears on common soil. The next morning, when the hospital corps came on the field to carry off the bodies of the dead, there, side by side, clasped in each others arms, was the man that wore the blue and the man that wore the gray. Death had made them brothers."

"But there is another peculiar thing about death and the grave. It should eliminate from every thoughtful mind, all feeling of arrogance and pride. Have you been boasting of your fine appearance. It will take only a few days in the grave to spoil the fineness and the beauty of feature and of form. Have you been glorying in your fine apparel? You cannot wear it when you enter the grave. It will take only a few days of the tomb to spoil the fineness of the garments. Have you been trusting in your money? There are no pockets in a shroud."

"When one of our rich men in Chicago died," added the evangelist, "someone on the street the next day asked, 'How much did he leave?' and one said, 'He left all that he had.'"

"Isn't it strange that men will strive and scheme early and late to get money for their children to fight over when they are dead and gone,—and remain with no hope in God or the hereafter. When the members of one of the orders of Chicago asked me to go to Oakwood cemetery to offer a prayer at the grave of one of its members that had died at a hospital, as our little company was coming out there filled the gates of the cemetery, there stood in the funeral procession of one of Chicago's great millionaires. But at the last, the pauper and the prince lay almost side by side."

"Shakespeare" put in the mouth of that great orator, Anthony, as he stood in the Forum, giving an oration over the body of the dead Julius Caesar:

"Oh, mighty Caesar, hast thou fallen so low? We all thy triumphs, conquests, spoils, reduced to this little measure? But yesterday the name of Caesar bellowed against the world, and now there is, is none so poor as to do him reverence."

Dollar—Then Hell.

"Why is it that so many of us sell our souls for dollars and then go to hell? Why is it that men are so anxious for pre-eminence and position, for worldly honor and fame? Oh, friends, these things amount to very little when you and I stand at the grave. When I stood in that church yard in England where Gray wrote his famous elegy, and afterward when I came up the St. Lawrence past the battle-field of Quebec, I thought how General Wolfe marched into battle that day of that great conflict, reciting the words of that

poem by Gray:

"The bores of heraldry and pomp of power,
And all that wealth or fortune
Ever gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour:
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

"Friends, the very fact of the certainty of death ought to make you and me realize what is permanent and important, and what is only fleeting and temporary. Some things that would seem to us very big for the moment, when we see them in the light of eternity, shrink into insignificance."

A young man, a wealthy man, an unbeliever, was expressing to a friend, a Christian, the desires and the plans of his life," continued Dr. Lyon, as he told of the young man's desire to take a college course and then go abroad for study. "And what then?" inquired the Christian friend. The young man replied that he would then return home and study law under the best possible teachers. "And what then?" persisted the Christian friend. He traced the desires of the man through life, led him to the very brink of the grave, and then demanded, "What then?"

"Oh," replied the unbeliever, "I suppose I'll die and that will be the end."

"No," said the friend, as he took his Bible and turned to Hebrews 9:27 and read, "And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after that the judgment." That's what then!

Your Record Awaits You.

"Some one has said," remarked the speaker, "that death is a time when everyone will get his reward. Better should we say, death is the time when everyone must face his record. You may have hidden your life from husband, wife, parent or child, neighbor or friend or stranger, but you cannot hide your life from God, and God will bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, according to what you have done, whether it be good or whether it be evil—and, my friends, in the white light of God's searching judgment, who can stand?"

"E. B. Meyer said that he went to the home of one of his parishioners and an old lady, a servant in the house, was just hanging the wash on the line. He complimented her on the whiteness of the wash. But, during that call, there came a short snow storm, and when Mr. Meyer came out, the ground was white. 'I said,' told Mr. Meyer, 'Sister, your clothes don't look as white as they did before.'"

"Oh," said she, "Brother Meyer, what can stand against God Almighty's whiteness?"

"My friends, have you been thinking that because you were as good as the brother member of your order, as good as your fellow business man or neighbor, that was going to give to you everlasting life? You are building your hopes on the sand. Every one of us has sinned. All have sinned and in place of 'all' let us say 'I have sinned and come short of the glory of God, and the wages of sin is death. It is eternal doom. God has brought all men under condemnation. Spiritually, my friends, you and I are bankrupt. We have broken God's laws. We do not ask for justice. If we did, we would be doomed."

You Must Be Ready.

"The very fact of the certainty of death calls upon us the importance of preparation. There are some that say, I am not afraid to die. Neither am I afraid, or are the cattle of the field afraid to die. You can take an ox out of the pasture and put him on the butcher's block and the others will gaze along as contentedly as before. They are not disturbed. Why? Because of their thoughtlessness and indifference. It isn't the question of whether you are afraid to die, but are you ready to meet God?"

"There was a colonel in the Confederate army during the Civil War that was elected sheriff of the county after the war was over. A few years after, this colonel lay on his death bed. A friend bent over the dying man and said, 'Colonel, are you afraid to die?' He looked up with a grim look upon his face, and said, 'Do you suppose one that has faced Yankee bullets and bayonets would be afraid to die? Then this Christian friend spoke to this unbeliever about God and the judgment, and that dying face was blanched with terror, as he cried, 'My God, I didn't think of that!'"

"The reason why so many are indifferent is that like the cattle of the field, sheer carelessness and thoughtlessness. And isn't it strange that many a business man that has the greatest shrewdness and foresight in the things of the world is absolutely foolish regarding the things of eternity?"

The Fool's Wisdom.

"I read somewhere of a fool, a fester, in the court of one of the kings of old, and in a fit of merriment, the king said, 'See, fool here is a staff. You keep this until you find a bigger fool than you are.' Then he gave the staff to him. Time passed on and the king came to his death bed. This fester, who had the freedom of the palace came stalking into the king's private apartment and said, 'King, you are going to die.' 'I know it,' replied the king. 'Are you a Christian?' asked the fester. 'Are you prepared for death?' Have you made your peace with God?"

"No, I haven't," said the king. "I haven't thought of that. I have been engaged in merriment and pleasure. 'Here, take this,' said the fester, as he laid the staff on the bed and stalked away.

"Isn't it strange that many a man will be careful about his insurance? A friend of mine met one of the wealthy business men in the city recently, and that friend said to him, 'I am in an awful hurry. I can't stop to talk with you, I'd like to, but I cannot. I find that I have overlooked the fact that a large share of my fire insurance runs out at noon and if a fire would break out in my business house with that insurance off, I'd be a bankrupt.'"

The Christian man saw his chance and said, 'You have business foresight about the insurance upon your goods. Have you upon your soul?'"

Dr. Lyon then told of William Reynolds of Peoria, Ill., visiting at the country home of a millionaire unbeliever. The rich man showed the evangelist his possessions, reaching miles in every direction, and finally Reynolds said to him, 'You have property in this direction and there, but,' and the Peoria man pointed his finger toward heaven, 'how much have you up there? So many men are absolutely foolish in regard to the things of eternity,' repeated the evangelist.

Can't Buy a Ticket There.

"There was Cornelius Vanderbilt, whose property was scheduled by the assessors as worth $187,000,000. He was talking one evening in his fine mansion in New York City with his friend, Chauncey Garrett, and without a moment's warning that man dropped to the floor and died. What good did his money do him? You can not buy your way to heaven. There are no pockets in a shroud. "Out in a western meeting," related Dr. Lyon, "I spoke to a man at the close of a meeting about the Christian life. He said, 'I am sorry I did not get back sooner to attend these meetings.' He lingered till the close of the meeting, reluctant to go, but he rejected Jesus Christ. I met that man six months afterward in another city. He greeted me cordially, and I said, 'Friend, how is it? Are you a Christian yet?' 'No,' he replied. 'What are you looking forward to, then?' I asked, 'What will be the end of it all?'"

Just to drop into the grave," he declared.

"That was to me simply pathetic," declared the evangelist. "There was a man, the owner of a great system of elevators, of great stock farms and ranches, and yet that man did drop into the grave without any hope in Jesus Christ, without any hope of salvation."

"There are some things in which I want to be certain. I haven't very much life insurance. I believe in it. But what little I have, I want to be sure of. I don't want to go on paying premiums on these policies year after year, and find out at last that they are bankrupt, that I have lost all my money, and that when I die, my wife and children would be in want."

Going to "Play Safe."

"There are some other things in life and business of which I want to be sure. There are other things of infinitely greater importance. Some one said to Dr. Joseph Cook, 'that big old human, 'Doctor, tell us what you think of future probation.' That great man said, as he used to in those Monday lectures, resting his chin on his elbow, 'Friends, there are some things of which I am sure. There are other things of which I am not sure. Whether there be any chance at all for a probation after death, I know not, but one thing is certain—I do not propose to pillow my dying head upon a guess.'"

"Friends, one thing you should be sure of, and that is of an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God. It is only going to be a matter of a few months or a few years when the end of this earth will come to our earthly lives. When I went to Europe, I took occasion to make a careful schedule of my itinerary. I figured just when the boat would leave Naples, when it would leave Liverpool and then when it would get to Montreal. I figured which train I would get back to Chicago, and then what train I would take to my suburban home. Partly in jest and partly in earnest, I said to my wife, 'You can expect me home on the 28th day of August, at four minutes past eleven o'clock. And after traveling thousands and after thousands of miles, in many countries, I didn't miss that by a minute.'"

"Now, my friends, very easily you can plan for the future. Isn't it strange that many people act as though they were going to live on this old world forever? All of your heart beats are numbered. Sooner than you think your loved ones are going to rather in your home or in your church. The minister is going to stand at your casket to offer that prayer, perform that service, and your friends are going to follow you to that grave yard and lay that body away, returning dust to dust. But how about you? Where will you spend eternity? In what are you trusting for salvation? In your education? There is no promise in God's word for that. Upon your cleverness? There is no heathen in the Bible for cleverness only for foolishness. Are you trusting to your friendships, to your good works? Are you trusting to your ritual or your burial service, or your oaths—Are you trusting to your wealth? You are building your hopes of heaven on the sands."

Resurrection is Personal.

"Friends I have to stand at the judgment of God to give an account of how I preached to you, and God forbid that I should put this different from it is. In Jesus Christ and in Him alone is everlasting life. He that hath the Son of God hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not the life. Jesus said, 'I am the resurrection and the life.' The resurrection was not simply an event—it was a person.

30 DAYS IN JAIL FOR BOYS CELEBRATING

Youngsters Found Guilty of Disorderly Conduct in Connection With Halloween Franks May Be Sentenced.

Extra police officers have been detailed for duty tonight to help keep Young America within the bounds of reasonable fun. No disorder which will result in the annoyance of residents or injury to property will be permitted and offenders will be arrested.

Last night no serious trouble was reported except from Hudson avenue in the vicinity of North street. Here a crowd of boys threw bottles and other debris and caused the residents some trouble cleaning up the mess this morning. A portion of the fence around the Hudson avenue school building was also torn down.

The police have the names of some of the youngsters responsible for this work and a quiet investigation is being conducted to identify the others, when the whole gang will be brought before the mayor for disorderly conduct. The offenders are liable to a sentence of 30 days in jail.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

What to Drink.

Don't drink anything and everything just because it resembles water. Be discriminating. It may be the purest, sparkling water from a mountain spring or it may be a dilute solution of sewage and deadly bacteria. When encountering a strange water ask, "Whence came you?" If it is a city public supply it is usually safe. City waters are analyzed monthly, and when found polluted the fact is published and the cause of pollution removed. If it is the well with the old oaken bucket or any open topped well, beware. Analyses show that these old family wells—the open top kind and those that are not walled up water tight with cement, covered and drained around the top—are more than twice as likely to be polluted as city waters, and the state rarely analyzes these wells.

Was nominated by acclamation at the Democratic Circuit Judicial Convention, held in Canton, Ohio, June 27, 1912, for circuit judge for the short term for the fifth judicial circuit.

He is a resident of Delaware county and has been engaged in the practice of the law for more than 35 years. No lawyer who ever practiced in Delaware county has gained for himself a more enviable reputation for ability and integrity in his profession than Hon. F. M. Marriott. No man in the judicial circuit could be found whose nomination and election would bring greater ability and honor to the court.

Quoting from his own words when accepting the nomination: "The highest ambition of a lawyer is at some period in his life to serve upon the bench as a judge, and I can conceive of no greater honor that could be conferred upon a lawyer than to close his life work upon the bench. No man is fit for judicial position unless he knows the law and is honest and has the courage of his convictions."

NEWARK H'S TOUGHEST BATTLE COMES SATURDAY

When the whistle blows at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at Wehrle Park the Newark High football squad will find themselves facing the most formidable foe of the season. East High has lost but one game this season and is undoubtedly the best High school team in Columbus. Newark High has won all four games played this season. East High defeated the strong Doane Academy team 12 to 0.

The Newark High team surprised themselves in the game last Saturday and regret that the sad score put the Zanesville squad out of business.

But our boys will meet a very different foe on Saturday. East High is the best coached and trained team in Columbus and the game promises to be a battle royal. The Columbus teams each have two coaches, one for the first and one for the second team, while here our Coach Keckley is compelled to handle the whole squad.

James Brown, the star right half of last year, is suffering from a "Charley Horse" but hopes to be in the game Saturday. His brother, Charles Brown, is hustling both he and Hagar at half for these positions, and at times looks as good as either of them. Another year and he will be a star half back.

Four men are fighting for the positions at guard and lately big Clark Mazey—220 lbs.—has been out to practice regularly and will make a great guard.

All the men are working hard for the game Saturday and Coach Keckley will put the best men in the field and will not decide the exact line-up to start the game until Friday night.

If the Taft crowd are so terribly alarmed over the calamity to the country as they are preaching will be the consequence of Woodrow Wilson's election why did they not respect the wishes of a majority of the delegates from the Republican states at the Chicago Convention and nominate Theodore Roosevelt as their candidate. The Roosevelt leaders have successfully maintained the charge that the Taft nomination was stolen at Chicago, and of course that caused and justified the division in the Republican party, and the unsettled feature of the campaign
today is which will be third in the race—Taft or Roosevelt.

The New York Herald is not an organ for Woodrow Wilson nor any other candidate nor party.
But the Herald gives the figures to show that Wilson will be elected,
with Roosevelt second and Taft third in the race. At the same time the Herald's financial articles make uniform showing for the permanent prosperity of the country's business.

It is a safe bet that in all the eastern cities where registration has fallen off the loss is wholly among the Republicans.

The Taft calamity howl is the most reactionary feature of the entire campaign since its beginning.
Progressiveness means Taft's defeat overwhelmingly.

The real panic that the Republican leaders are alarmed about is a Republican panic, and the results to the G. O. P. are fearful to contemplate.

The Democratic party does not rely upon the division of the Republicans for victory. It does not base its expectations of winning upon negative issues, but upon the recognized ability, honesty and fearlessness of its candidates, its platform and its reform record in Congress.

A dispatch from Pittsburg states that Mayor Magee's followers are in open revolt and threaten to wreak vengeance on the Penrose organization through knifing of the Taft ticket. This will settle it that Taft will be third in Pennsylvania.

The betting against Taft in New York yesterday reached the odds of 5 to 1, the largest bet offered being $1,500 to $300.

Governor Wilson is not an alarmist; he stands for success, not failure, for prosperity, not disaster.

Years of Suffering

Catarrh and Blood Disease—Doctors Failed to Cure.
Miss Mabel P. Dawkins, 1214 Lafayette
St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes:
"For three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different remedies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suffering from catarrh."

MONEY STOLEN FROM THE STATE MUST BE PAID BACK

This is the Decision of the Democratic Supreme Judges
Over the Action of the Republican Supreme Judges, Who Decided Against the State.

Like a warning to beware of a return to a Republican state administration was the decision of the Ohio Supreme Court
Tuesday in Columbus that the bondsmen of the late William S.
McKinnon, Republican state treasurer from 1905 to 1908 and his executors must recompense the state for all money lost through McKinnon's participation in the treasury grant that disgraced
G. O. P. State administrations.

As a result of this decision, the McKinnon estate and his bondsmen must pay into the state treasury $18,995 which was STOLEN from the commonwealth. The express charge being that McKinnon loaned out sums of public money ranging from $50,000 to $775,000 per month and pocketed the interest. In his term these illegal loans aggregated $3,000,000. The decision paves the way for many other suits of similar nature involving a total amount of at least $300,000 and perhaps $700,000.

Among the McKinnon bondsmen called upon to pay are Harry L. Daugherty, chairman of the Republican state executive committee in the present campaign, and W. F. Hoffman, who for many years served as treasurer of the Republican state committee.

This decision vindicates the claim of Democrats that a gang of political parasites composing the ruling power in the Republican party had for years bartered rich deposits of public money to dishonestly swell their own fortunes and those of their tools—former Republican treasurers. This money was parceled out to members of the avareicious ring in return for commissions paid to treasurers and the state was thereby filched of thousands of dollars each year. With the advent of Democrats a big reform in the handling of public money was instituted in the treasurer's office with the result that the interest earnings that have been stolen by former treasurers have gone into the state treasury, and the revenue of the commonwealth has been increased $625,000 from this source in only four years.

Republicans maintained there was no crookedness in the treasury department even after evidence was produced to show there was.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT THAT NO REPUBLICAN JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT VOTED TO SUSTAIN THE CIR-CUIT COURT WHICH HELD McKINNON'S BONDSMEN LIABLE. THE VOTES OF THREE DEMOCRATIC JUDGES,
ONLY, MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR THE COMMONWEALTH
TO RECOVER THE STOLEN MONEY.

ATTENTION, MR. VOTER!

On account of the extraordinary size of the ballot to be cast at the election next Tuesday and the multiplicity of candidates, the voter should carefully study the various tickets before he enters the booth and should decide as early as possible whom he wishes to support.

Secretary of State Graves has ruled that the voter may take a fac-simile or sample ballot into the booth with him for his guidance in marking the ballot. This sample or fac-simile must be destroyed or removed from the booth when the voter leaves.

There are many ways in which a ballot may be marked legally. For instance, a voter may vote a "straight ticket" by placing a cross mark (X) in the circle at the head of a ticket of a party.

THERE IS ONLY ONE SAFE WAY TO VOTE A "MIXED TICKET."

Here it is: To be absolutely safe, and to insure his ballot being counted the voter should place
a cross mark (X) before the name of every candidate he wishes to support, including each and every one of the Presidential electors.

And, above all things, don't get tired and fail
to vote for all the candidates you wish to support!
This is the most important duty the voter has to perform.

JOSEPH H. ORR

Joseph H. Orr, candidate for County Commissioner, comes before the voters of Licking county for a position of importance, one which he is eminently qualified to fill.

Mr. Orr was born in Linnville, Bowling Green township, and at present is living in Newark township, south of Central City. Having spent the most of his life on a farm,
he is thoroughly acquainted with the needs of the county and it is with the country districts that the commissioners are mostly concerned.

He served two terms as trustee of Newark township and finished his last term only last December, having served his township well during the four years
he held office.

His past record as a public official is one which warrants the voters in placing their confidence in him by electing him to the more responsible position of County Commissioner.

He has made a success of his own business and he will make just as good a success in handling the county's affairs. He has been a Democrat all his life and has worked earnestly for the success of the Democratic party, whether he has been a candidate or not. He is deserving of the support of every voter who wishes to place in power, commissioners of ability and integrity.

HONEST ELECTION IS THE DEMAND OF ATTY. GEN'L HOGAN

Columbus, O., Oct. 29, 1912.
To the Prosecuting Attorneys of Ohio:

Gentlemen: On the eve of the important election to be held next Tuesday, November 5, I wish to call your attention to the Kimble Corrupt Practices Act, 192 O. L., 321-321.

I do this not upon any assumption that any prosecutor is not as anxious for the enforcement of this law as I am, but for the purpose of securing the united effort of all the prosecutors in the state for it is only by uniform action and vigilance in every county that the result desired can be attained, and I am, therefore,
addressing this letter to every prosecutor in the state.

It is highly important that you use every endeavor to see that there are no violations of the act. This law is essential to the existence of our state. It is capable of rigid enforcement, and its prompt and vigorous and impartial enforcement in this election will forever end a practice which has too long disgraced our commonwealth.

The people of the state look to you and to me to see that this act accomplishes its purpose, and I therefore ask that you do whatever may be necessary to enforce its provisions. If you have information or suspicion that there will be attempts made to evade the law on election day, the legislature has provided you with funds which may be legitimately used by you to detect offenders against the law.

Let it be understood, once and for all, that as officers of the state, we propose to see that this law is enforced, and that violators of it are to be prosecuted promptly and fearlessly, without regard of persons or parties. I know that I can count upon your earnest co-operation.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) TIMOTHY S. HOGAN,
Attorney General.

And His Self-Respect.

minutive boy standing on the threshold. "P. se, m'ez'm," lisped he, "can me an' another man have the loan of the brown skiff to go a-cod fishin'?"

The man of perfect manners may on favored uppers go his way, and he will gain a host of friends as his toilsome way he wends. But

FRANK R. DUMM

Frank R. Dumm is one of the three candidates on the Democratic ticket for County Commissioner.

Mr. Dumm is a son of A. H. Dumm,
an old-time Jacksonian Franklin township Democrat, and the son has inherited Democratic doctrine from his father ever since he was old enough to tattle.

Frank R. Dumm is eminently qualified to fill the office to which he aspires. After attending the district schools he began the occupation of farming, and continued in that vocation until he lost his left arm in a saw mill accident a couple of years ago. His right hand was also mangled but undaunted the young man continued his fight for a livelihood in spite of the great odds which would have discomfited most young men, for Mr.
Dumm is only 21 years of age.

Socially he is a pleasant young man
to meet and his canvas for the nomination demonstrated that he had friends in abundance for he led the entire field of county candidates at the primaries and ran away from the bunch.

Licking county electors will make no mistake in supporting Mr. Dumm for the office to which he aspires as he is thoroughly trustworthy in every respect and will give the office that time and attention which is its due. Your support will be appreciated by Mr.
Dumm and he promises that in case he is successful he will endeavor to merit
the confidence which you may repose in him.

BEN B. JONES

Probably no man in Licking county is better fitted to fill the office of county commissioner than is Ben B. Jones, who is one of the three Democrats nominated by the party for membership in the board of county commissioners.

The office of county commissioner carries with it the direction of the expenditure of great sums of county money and the obvious interests of the tax payers of the county is to have such a power vested in officers who, through practical experience, know the value, quality and cost of building materials and who are versed in the direction of labor in the ways that will mean saving to the county.

Ben B. Jones, a native of Licking county, has, for eighteen years been a successful contractor and builder and in connection with his work has opened several additions to the city.
In these years he has amassed a splendid fund of practical knowledge that has been a power in recommending his candidacy to the voters of Licking county.

General, straightforward and capable, a worker and not a theorist, essentially a successful man of af-airs, Ben B. Jones is deserving of the support of every voter and every tax payer.

The ONLOOKER WILBUR D. NESBIT MODERN STUDY

To find the sum of 2 and 2
You take a clean, white sheet—
But first of all that you must do
Is sit straight in the seat,
With toes at 45 degrees,
Your legs almost at plumb,
Your legs right-angled at the knees;
Then you attempt the sum.

The sheet of paper you must place
Upon your desk just so.
Then with a pen and ink you trace
A line, above, below,
And one upon each side as well,
And draw them without blot—
In that case anyone could tell
The sum cannot be got.

Don't be impatient. Now you write
The date up at the top;
Be sure don't hold your pen too tight
Or let an inkspot drop
Upon the sheet, for then the blame
Would be severe for you.
Now in one corner write your name
For thus the sum we do.

Now, having thus prepared the sheet,
You see the figures set
Be sure you get them very neat
Or else on you we'll frown.
And now you—Ah, it is too bad!
Reciting time is through.
Some other day we'll learn to add
The figures 2 and 2.

Poor Prospects.
"Well, daughter, what's the kind father, 'Now that you have gone through college at an expenditure of four years' time and six thousand dollars in real money, and as near as I can study it out, you show a net gain intellectually of being able to recite your class yell and possess a new and strange accent in your voice, I can't help but wonder what was that 'vocation in life' you said all this education was to fit you for. Was you intending to be a brakeman?"

What Became of Him.
"What became of your brother Bill, who never could learn any history at school, and always insisted that Benedict Arnold discovered America?" inquired the former resident.
"Who? Bill?" responded the Person Addressed. "Oh, he don't live here any more. He made a million dollars out of a historical novel that had Adam for its hero and Joan of Arc for the heroine."

Well Supplied.
"Look here," said the employer to the office boy, "you have already been off twice because your grandmother was dead, and today you want off on the same excuse. How is that?"
"Oh, sir," answered the office boy, struggling against the temptation to rush to the window to watch the baseball parade. "Oh, sir, I am pained to tell you that poor grandfather was a bigamist."

Rapid Rice.
"I," says the self-made man with some pride, "began life as a corn doctor, 'but after working a year at that profession invented a dandruff cure that has made me independently rich.'"

This shows us that if we begin at the foot it does not take long to reach the head, or something to that effect.

Raising the Ante.
"After all," commented the unhappy customer, "business is largely a game of chance."
"Yes," agreed the pleasant butcher. "Most of the time we are playing for high stakes."

Thebard Nesbit.

Yes, indeed.
"Didn't I see your daughter with a strange young man last night?"
"You certainly did! When he asked daughter to go out with him for some ice cream he asked her mother to go along, and he went home at 10 o'clock without any hints, and he wears sane socks and don't seem to think he knows it all. He certainly is a strange young man."

About All.
"Do you dye whiskers?"
"Yes," answered the barber.
"Do they fool anybody?"
"Seem to fool the man that wears them."

Philosophy and Love

They had known each other a very long time, and they were joined together, perhaps by something more than friendship. The summer, with all its charms, was smiling for him; she was beautiful, and her eyes were like two large stars. But he was at Oxford studying, while she was—a girl ready for marriage. Finally he decided that she was not in love with him, and in his soul he found a power that was stronger than love, which pushed him forward to the country of studies—a country containing no dreams or illusions.

He went to Africa for his holiday, and while passing his time idly he learned that she was married.

"It is an old story," said he, ironically, to himself, and tried to think he did not care about her.

Finally he wearied of the long trip, and came back, brown from the African sun, and languishing for her.

She had had time to lose her husband, and had finished mourning. But the capricious nature of this man drove him away as before.

At last he called upon her, thinking that at the door she would meet him with a shower of sweet reproaches. But she received him as always, apparently indifferent, with a good-hearted smile on her pink lips.

"She never loved me," he was thinking, with bitterness in his soul.

Seeing the cloud upon his forehead, she understood him and wanted to distract him by conversation.

"What is the matter with you today?" she asked him with apparent indifference. "You cover yourself with clouds of smoke in order not to look at me. I never saw you so nervous before. What is the matter with you? Tell me."

"Indeed, I have many reasons to be sad and nervous," he answered with a sigh.

"Show me your secret. Tell me all." He looked directly into her large eyes, but he read there only ordinary curiosity.

"I can't tell you."

"Because you don't help me."
"Because you don't have confidence in me," she answered, indifferently.

"I would be willing to tell you the secret on which the destiny of all the world depended," he said with emotion. "But you will not help me."

"How do you know?"

"I know it because it is not in your disposition, in your character, perhaps not in your blood or in your temperament."

"I am very anxious. Sit down here, look into my eyes, and explain those reproaches that wound me so cruelly."

"I have a very difficult task," he answered smiling, "but I will try. First let us take an example, such as one meets very often in the lives of two loving hearts."

"Somebody loves you, and is suffering because he is not sure of your love. His heart is breaking because of doubt. You won't see such sentiments; you won't do anything. Another woman would see the love, would notice the poison of deception, would put her hand on his shoulder and with one word finish all his suffering. You would never do that. You would keep the love as a snake near your breast. You would torture his soul, and you would rather die of love than show that you loved also."

She was listening to him with attention. Her shapely face reddened; her lips became purple; her black eyes were moist and bright; her bosom heaved, and she said faintly, "And this you are telling me sincerely."

"Sincerely—"

He would have spoken farther, but at this moment he felt two snow-white arms around his neck. The beautiful little head approached his face, the small mouth touched his hair, his burning forehead, his lighted eyes, and finally joined his lips in one long kiss.

Intoxicated and happy, he kept her in his arms, desiring to prolong infinitely this charming moment.

She drew her lips from his, hung on his neck, and looking into his eyes, whispered with wonderful sweetness: "Dear, you were mistaken."

French-Grown Havanas.

The world of smokers in France is, to judge by letters and paragraphs in the newspapers, seriously agitated by a step recently taken by the government department which superintends the tobacco monopoly. It has ordered a supply of Havana and Maryland tobacco seed for plantation in France; and it openly proclaims its intention of selling tobacco raised from this newly imported seed as genuine Havana and Maryland. It certainly seems to be a proceeding of dubious commercial morality; and the assumption that the peculiar fascination of a Havana cigar or a pipeful of Virginia tobacco is due merely to the fact that it is grown from a certain seed, and not to any unique conditions of climate or manufacture, seems equally questionable—but the final word is with the monopoly.

Phosphate Rock Production.
Between 1901 and 1911 the production of phosphate rock increased from 1,483,723 long tons, valued at $5,316,403, to 3,653,279 long tons, valued at $11,900,657. There was an increase in production in 1911 over 1910 of nearly four hundred thousand tons.

Alcohol for Boys? Go To Your Doctor
Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

The Dog Slipped Out of the Opened Gate.
The Dog Went Eighty Miles Home.

THE children settled down cozily beside the fire, where Sheppie had his nose as close to the nice blaze as he thought safe.

"Sheppie likes his home, doesn't he?" daddy said to Jack and Evelyn.

The children nodded, and even Sheppie wagged his tail as if to say yes.

"Don was mighty fond of his home, too," daddy went on. "I wonder if our Sheppie would be so fond of us that he would walk eighty miles to see us?"

"Don is a handsome setter, eighteen months old. His master lately sold him to a gentleman who lives eighty miles away."

"His new master took the dog home on the cars. Don behaved well, and when he was taken to his new home he seemed to like everybody."

"He made friends with the cook and the cat and seemed to take a great fancy to the children."

"The first day he was kept in the house so that he would get used to the new place."

"The second day, though, he was turned out into the yard. The gate was to be kept closed, and it was hoped that in a few days Don would be so fond of his new friends that he could be trusted to follow them about."

"All might have been well, but some one happened to leave the back gate open. Don went out."

"As soon as the dog was missed there was great excitement in the house. Every one started out to look for the dog."

"They searched the town for the lost dog, but no one had noticed him, and calls for Don brought no answer."

"Then they sent for his former master to come and help. It was thought the dog might be living in the woods and getting his food by hunting."

"So the dog's former master on his arrival went through the woods, calling for Don, but no joyous bark replied to his whistle."

"Then he gave it up and went back to the house, where Don's new friends waited for him."

"Just then some one in Bridgeport, Don's old home town, rang up on the telephone. It was the brother of the dog's old master."

"Are you still looking for Don?" the brother asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Very well, then; you'd better come home," advised the brother. "Don's sitting on the front doorstep of your house this minute waiting for you."

"What do you think of that? The clever doggie had found his way home over eighty miles of road he had never traveled before. A smart dog, Don; don't you think so?"

PIMPLES GO--BEAUTY COMES

You Just Can't Help Having a Beautiful Complexion If You Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Pimples! Horrors! And what a wonderful change when they are all gone. Most every one has noticed this.

Nowadays, when you see a real beauty, the chances are Stuart's Calcium Wafers wrought that wonderful change. It takes only a short time, even with very bad complexions—the kind that are disfigured with rash, eczema, boils, blotches and liver spots.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers cause the skin pores to breathe out impurities. The lungs burn up a great amount, but Nature imposes upon the skin the larger burden. Every tick of the clock means work, work, work for these wonderful wafers. And every instant new skin is forming. Impurities become less and less, the pores are re-invigorated, and soon such a thing as a pimple, black-head or any other eruption is impossible. You marvel at the change.

The soft, rosy tint love taps the cheeks; the neck, shoulders and arms show the health of youthful skin—in fact, you just can't help having a beautiful complexion if you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are put up in convenient form to carry with you, are very palatable, and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents a box.

ALL SIDES SEE SURE VICTORY

Optimism the Watchword at Each Headquarters.

ARE THEY BLUFFING OR WHAT?

Both Dixon and Hilles Most Confident. Ollie James Gathers Stories and Bets. Tom Pence Indispensable Man Around Democratic Headquarters—How Will College Men Vote?

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, Oct. 31.—[Special]—If one could be as sure of the election of certain candidates as the men around headquarters seem to be what a lot of money he could make by betting. There is absolute confidence at the Taft headquarters that he will be elected. There is more than confidence, there is faith, at the Roosevelt headquarters that he will be elected.

Now, if a fellow could have that same confidence what a joke it would be to go down among those sporting men who are offering 4 to 1 on Wilson and gather in their money. Just think of it, if you could get $25,000 together you could make in $100,000 belonging to those foolish Wilson men.

Of course they will tell you that betting odds and straw votes don't count for anything, but when those odds and straw votes agree with one's own judgment he don't go around betting very much even if the odds make it a good sporting proposition.

Dixon's Sublime Faith.
I like the faith of Joe Dixon. He took me into the innermost secrets of his heart the other day and told me that if anything was needed to make Roosevelt's election sure it was the bullet fired at him by the assassin. "The people are standing in a penitential mood and reverential attitude," said Dixon, "wondering what they have done that this great man was so nearly taken from them. They are so thoroughly aroused that they will not permit him to be defeated. They know now how great is their need of him, which they did not realize before."

In the bull moose headquarters was another man who is prominent in the campaign. "We are going to put him over," he said. A little later, in speaking of business matters, he remarked that he would have to look up something to do after the election. Now it appeared to me that if he really felt so sure of the election of Roosevelt he would not be looking for something to do after the election. He would be employed, all right, not only until the inauguration, but afterward.

Chairman Hilles Alone.
In speaking of confidence about the Taft headquarters it is only fair to say that Chairman Hilles is the real confident man. The others deal in "ifs" and such other expressions as to leave a little doubt about their sure beliefs. "It is looking better all the time," they say, or, "If we had a month more we could win easily," or "Of course we'll beat Roosevelt out," are expressions heard. There is talk about "drift toward Taft."

For a number of presidential elections I have heard around Democratic headquarters similar expressions and told that they could "feel it in the air" things were coming their way. For the real confident men defeat is a very sad thing. I do not like to meet the real confident man after the election is over, especially if he is on the losing side.

"Where's Tom Pence?"
In the sumptuous and luxurious headquarters of the Democratic national committee the question most frequently heard is, "Where's Tom Pence?" It seems that if one is able to locate Pence he can get what he wants. The campaign speakers go to see him, the followers who want to see Chairman Pence or Vice Chairman McAdoo, and ought to see them, get in touch with Pence. And Pence started in this campaign as the Washington press agent of the Wilson boom. His first hard job came when his friend, Marce Henry Watterson, went back on the New Jersey governor. He handled that so well that he began to be consulted in all difficult problems. If Wilson is elected they ought to do something handsome for Tom Pence. He has been a mighty help in the campaign.

Ollie James' Stories.
Ollie James will be welcome in the cloakrooms when congress convenes, for he has aquired a lot of good campaign stories during his speaking tour of the country. He has also exhibited quite a desire to bet a little money on Wilson. "It's just like finding it," said James.

Getting the College Men.
Congressman Murray of Massachusetts was hurrying home to Boston the other day, and his mission was to secure the support of the college men for Governor Wilson. "There are 26,000 college men in Massachusetts," he said, "and if we can get them turned in Wilson's direction I think we can carry Massachusetts."

Of course Wilson is a college man, but Roosevelt is a graduate of Harvard and Taft is a graduate of Yale. The natural inquiry is why college men should be for a former president of Princeton any more than they should be for graduates of Harvard and Yale.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

MILK SHOULD BE EXCLUDED IN TYPHOID.

That a low protein ration, excluding milk, is best in typhoid fever has been determined by Dr. Carlton of the United States navy. It has long been the custom to feed the typhoid patient on milk, but when temperature is above normal digestion can not be normal and any animal food is then particularly injurious. Fruit juices, and especially grape juice, are the only foods that are beneficial when the temperature is much above the normal and especially in typhoid. The idea that high feeding is beneficial in all wasting diseases is an error, although some qualification is necessary in consumption.

AMUSEMENTS
NANCY AND HER NEW PLAYS HERE NEXT WEEK
Comedies used by the leading women stars of America constitute the bulk of the repertoire of Nancy Boyer this season. As a rule, people go to the theatre to be amused, rather than to be instructed or purified by suffering and anguish. To this end, comedies prevail among the plays which Nancy brings here for her annual engagements. These include "Clarice," a five act play written by William Gillette, in some respects the leading American author actor. He is responsible for such successes as "Secret Service," "Field By the Enemy," "Too Much Johnson," "Because She Loved Him So," and several others, none of which in delicacy of story or adeptness of treatment, approached "Clarice." Miss Marie Dorro created the role in New York with Mr. Gillette playing the leading male role. True, there are tears in the comedy, but the tear of sorrow is immediately chased away by one of laughter. The theme of the story is new and will please every one. "Clarice," is Nancy's favorite role this year, while in Mr. Gillette's part Mr. William Wagner, Nancy's new leading man has a role which tries even his great abilities. All new women constitute Miss Boyer's feminine support, while of the old favorites Henry Testa, Edward Barton, Clifford Hyde and John J. Lynch, will receive a cordial welcome locally. Nancy opens a week's engagement at the Auditorium Monday, Nov. 4, appearing in "Divorçons" at the matinee and "A Bachelor's Romance" in the evening. Ladies free tickets to the number of 300 will be given for the Monday evening performance if reserved before 12 o'clock noon Monday. Seats go on sale Saturday for the first half of the week.

BIG VAUDEVILLE
BILL AND BAND
AT THE ORPHEUM
The feature for the Orpheum tonight is the big colored musical show composed of the four men billed as "The Four Brass Men," sons of dance and musical artists. It is said these people can really put up the fun in packages and pass it around.
Ross and Stewart, singing and talking comedians, were a big hit in Zanesville this week and should be a big success here.
Billy Burner, a talking, dancing and

singing kid, is a real one when it comes to big stuff; he is one of those boys who were born to entertain the public and it comes nature for him to please.
Jack Wolf is a foot juggler. He takes after the Japanese style of juggling, all the work is done with his feet and legs. He is a wonder in this work. This is said to be a very high class bill in every way and will no doubt be a big success before the end of the week. Own your seats by phone and you can't be turned away on account of no seats.
Playing on the boards in Newark a big all star vaudeville bill, one of the big features for this week will be Rasso's animals. These are made up of all kinds of four-legged animals and they are trained to do most everything but talk. The management is arranging for a cage to fit the little stage, and the act will be staged in all its entirety.
Whitney and Gerami the trio of girls with their piano, give latest songs and music.
The Lemars, novelty soap bubble jugglers, are said to be big winners.
The Rays, a trio of colored minstrels, will also be a big feature on the bill. They sing many songs, dances and jokes.
Rutledge, Pickering and company are also coming to Newark. This company is in Columbus this week and making good. Several arrangements have been made to act this big act here.
Parker's Minstrel with his big band concerts before a big performance, will also be in Newark. Lively old town this will be. Watch for the big band concert.
Rollans and Rollans, a big circus act, will also be here to make the biggest vaudeville bill Newark ever had. Just remember and keep your eyes peeled for the good things.

BERT O. HORTON

The best interests of Licking county's legal business will be served by the election of Mr. Bert O. Horton, the Democratic candidate for Clerk of the Courts by a good round majority. Mr. Horton's thorough qualification and well known integrity were understood by the voters at the primary election last May and his popularity as a candidate has been further demonstrated during the progress of the campaign. That the business of the Clerk's office will be conducted in a manner highly satisfactory to all the people is an accepted fact by all who are familiar with his abilities. There is no more important office in the Court House than that of Clerk of the Courts and Mr. Horton will be found the right man in the right place when he is elected. (adv.)

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

For Perspiring Hands.

More or less success has attended the use of many methods in use for the treatment of excessive perspiration of hands and feet, some of the methods being the treatment of the parts with a solution of tannic acid in alcohol, frequent washing with permanganate solution, bathing the feet with strong solution of alum, placing disinfecting powder in the stockings, etc. A noted physician says that chromic acid is the most effective, and this he uses in 2 per cent solution, painting it on the soles of the feet and the toes every day or two and finally once a week. This has immediate results.

ELECTION JUDGES WERE INSTRUCTED BY SUPERVISORS

Local judges of election were given instructions last night by the members of the election board at the convention room of the court house, regarding the counting of ballots at next Tuesday's election. Every possible form of a "scratched" ballot was exhibited and the judges were instructed how they should be counted. Special stress was laid on the matter of counting votes for candidates where there are more than one to be elected for each office. This is the case with the presidential electors, county commissioners, etc. The judicial ballot is also one where more than one candidate is to be elected.

The instructions given the judges emphasize the fact that the only safe way to vote a split ticket is to mark a cross in front for the name of each candidate the voter wants to support.

The judges were also instructed regarding the opening and closing of the polling places. No ballots can be issued before 5:30 in the morning and none after the same hour in the evening.

The question of whether voters who reach the polling places before 5:30 p. m. should be allowed to vote, also received special attention. The judges were instructed to cease issuing ballots when all the booths were occupied. In the evening if there is a rush immediately before the closing hour, only those who already have their ballots when the closing hour arrives, will be permitted to mark and cast them.

By this decision, if a dozen men are in the polling place before 5:30 but the booths are occupied so they can not be given their ballots, they will be denied their right to vote at this election.

The judges of each precinct will meet at their respective polling places Monday night at 7 o'clock and elect one of their number presiding judge for the Tuesday election.

FIRE TRUCKS FROM YOUNGSTOWN PASS THROUGH THE CITY

Chief William H. Lawler of the Youngstown fire department, with three of his firemen, arrived in the city Wednesday night, driving the Chief's fire auto, a six cylinder sixty horse power machine and a service truck. The chief and his men were taking the cars from Youngstown to Columbus to have them overhauled and stopped in Newark for an hour's rest and luncheon, leaving about the midnight hour. They left Youngstown Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock, and but for an unfortunate accident, in having the big service truck skid into a ditch would have reached Columbus in time for supper last evening. Chief Lawler stated that the service truck had responded to every fire alarm in Youngstown during the past year answering 451 calls. It was used as an emergency truck and was invaluable. The entire fire department of the city is using motor trucks and the men claim it is the only system and has saved the city thousands of dollars yearly, paying for itself in a short time.

Next year the Youngstown department will purchase an aerial motor truck at a cost of $12,500. They now have 17 motor trucks in the department and since their installation have done most effective work, always arriving at the scene of a conflagration within a few minutes after the alarm has been sounded.

Nearly all cities of over 10,000 are installing motor trucks and Newark is behind the times in this respect. Only a few months ago Canton, O., spent the sum of $75,000 to equip the fire department with motors. It is only a question of a few years until cars will be a thing of the past in handling fire trucks and police patrols.

The installation of motor driven trucks in Newark would be particularly economical where the alarms are few and far between. The number of alarms responded to hardly averages two a week the year round. However, five teams must be provided with grain, hay, and bedding which in these times, is an immense expense.

With five motor driven vehicles in place of the five horse drawn trucks the efficiency of the department would not only be increased by a big per cent, but during the time these motors were standing idle in their respective stations, there would be little or no expense for upkeep.

Under the present system, whether the trucks are used or not the expense goes on and on. With motor driven trucks the expense would stop when the motors were stopped.

ON SECOND THOUGHT.

Wider—Henry, what is the difference between direct taxation and indirect taxation?

Hubby—Why, the difference between your asking me for money and going through my trousers while I'm asleep.

Prof. Harvey—The statistician, says three per cent. of the laughter is due to amusement. The other 97 per cent. is the result of attempts to be polite.

Now that a good many other superstitions are being exploded, it may be safe to say that country women do not cook as well as the town men who are employed for the purpose.

There are exceptions, of course, but, as a rule, the polite man is one who wants to sell you something.

THE BIRTHDAY CALENDAR.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

A quiet, busy year is indicated with progress in an uneventful way. Unusual undertakings are unfavorable.

Those born today will have positive natures of the self-assertive kind, and will succeed if under wise influences early in life. The faults to be controlled are haughtiness and a tendency to run to extremes.

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has excelled Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure glyceric extract (without alcohol), of bloodroot, golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherry bark.

My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and impure blood," writes Miss JAMES H. MARTIN, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a sore on his face that would form a scab which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. He tried every remedy that any one would suggest but found no relief. He then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has stayed cured now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine for impurities of the blood."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED PLEASE TRY "SYRUP OF FIGS."

Nothing like this delicious fruit laxative to cleanse your stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels of sour bile, gases, poisons and clogged-up waste.

You know when your liver is bad, when your bowels are sluggish. You feel a certain dullness and depression, perhaps the approach of a headache, your stomach gets sour and full of gas, tongue coated, breath foul, or you have indigestion. You say, "I am bilious or constipated and I must take something tonight."

Most people shrink from a physic—they think of castor oil, calomel, salts or cathartic pills.

It's different with Syrup of Figs. Its effect is that of fruit, of eating coarse food, of exercise. Take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, and you won't realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the clogged up waste matter, sour bile and constipation poisons move on and out of your system, without gripe, nausea or weakness.

Nothing else cleanses and regulates your sour, disordered stomach, torpid liver and thirty feet of waste-clogged bowels like gentle, effective Syrup of Figs. Don't think you are drugging yourself. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, it can not cause injury.

If your child is cross, sick and feverish, or its little stomach sour, tongue coated, give Syrup of Figs at once. It's really all that is needed to make children well and happy again. They dearly love its pleasant taste.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look on the label for the name—California Fig Syrup Company. That, and that only, is the genuine. Refuse any other fig syrup substitute with contempt.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

By O. Terrence.

HERBERT SATTERLEE, 49 TODAY, IS WEALTHY, BUT NOT IDLE

A man whose wealth would permit him to idle away all his days, and yet who works as if he were but one jump ahead of the world of poverty, is Herbert Livingston Satterlee, lawyer, and former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who celebrates today the forty-ninth anniversary of his birth. Mr. Satterlee has had three tremendous obstacles to overcome in attaining public recognition. He was born with a silver spoon in his mouth; he is a native of New York City, and he married a daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan. It was a long time before Mr. Satterlee was able to convince the newspapers that he was something more than merely "P. Morgan's son-in-law."

Mr. Satterlee was educated at Columbia University, acquiring from that institution the degrees of B. S., Ph. B., A. M., Ph. D., and LL. B. He was admitted to the bar at the age of twenty-one, but did not begin the practice of his profession until some time later. In the interval he acted as private secretary to William M. Everts, United States Senator. In 1900 he married Louisa Pierpont Morgan, daughter of the eminent financier.

From his youth Mr. Satterlee has been an enthusiast on the subject of Uncle Sam's naval development. He aided in the organization of the New York State naval militia, and became an officer in that body with the rank of Captain. He was also a colonel and aid-de-camp on the staff of Governor Leri P. Morton and Frank S. Black. When the war with Spain broke out, Mr. Satterlee was appointed a lieutenant in the United States navy, and served as chief of staff to Capt. John T. Bartlett.

After the war Mr. Satterlee took up the practice of law in earnest, and soon became counsel for a number of big corporations, including the Missouri Kansas & Texas Railway Company. When the 1907 panic came along, and the Knickerbocker Trust Company went down in the crash, Mr. Satterlee was given the job of saving the pieces. On December 1, 1908, Col. Roosevelt appointed him Assistant Secretary of the Navy, a post he held until the incoming of the Taft administration.

Last spring Mr. Satterlee formulated a political platform of his own, in which he expressed his opinions on all live issues. As to the regulation of corporations, he said:

"Does the business in question receive government protection or assistance? If so, regulate it. If not, leave it to achieve its destiny—untrammeled and untried."

Industrial labor, he holds, should be organized under government auspices and subject to government regulation. This system, he adds, "would not cover the question of wages, the rate of which will always be governed by the number of workers seeking employment in any particular industry."

In regard to immigrants, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law advocates that incoming foreigners be sent by a government commission to places where their labor is needed, "only being given a choice as to climatic conditions." Such a scheme he holds, will prevent congestion and extreme poverty in New York and other large centers of population, and would make immigrants a real national asset.

On the matter of suffrage, Mr. Satterlee is outspoken and decided. He asserts that the laws of nature and of nature's God have immutably established the position of women in the world. He adds: "She can bear children, but she cannot bear arms." As "bearing arms" is an important part of Mr. Satterlee's scheme of things, he is naturally "agin" the granting of the ballot to the fair sex.

"What would you do if this were your last day on this earth?" Wesley's Last Day.

"What would I do?" repeated Wesley. "I'd do just as I expect to do. I'd go and keep that appointment this afternoon, conduct that service this evening, go home and I expect to have family prayers with my loved ones, and kiss them good night, and go to sleep to wake up in heaven."

"Friends, that's success, isn't it? That's the success that God can give to everyone of us. That's the success that God wants to give to you and otherwise, with all your money, with all your education, with all your friendships, with all your good works—hear the word of Jesus. 'No man cometh unto the Father but by Me.'"

"Friends, don't try to trample under foot the love and mercy of God. Don't turn and pass out of this building tonight rejecting Jesus Christ, and refusing God's great invitation. He is the good man, let Christ into your life; unbar, unlock the door of your soul. Let Jesus come in and then you can say with the apostle, in the words we read tonight, 'Oh, death, where is thy sting; oh, grave, where is thy victory?' The sting of death is sin, and thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

"My friends, can you say that? What can anyone of these ministers say about you, honestly, as he stands at the head of your coffin? Can he say, 'There's one that everyone knew as a Christian, whose life was hit with Christ in God?' Can he say of you, as the dying boy said to his father, 'Father, when I get to heaven, I'll tell Jesus that it was your life of goodness that led me to Him?'"

"The end of life is very near. I do not know how long it seems to me it's going to be very, very short, but in any case I want to be true. I would like to die in my own home, with my wife and children around me—but rather than that, I'd like to die on the platform, preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ, and I have said, in our home church, that when my body is brought into that church, I do not want it to be a time of sorrow—I do not want it to be a time of lamentations—I want it to be a gospel service. I want Brother Mitchell, if he is alive, to be there and to lead the singing of these gospel hymns. I want the songs that you have sung in these meetings. I want it to be a time when souls are led to Jesus Christ. If we live, let's live for God, and when the end comes, whether it comes tonight or not, let us go with the realization that all is well with our souls."

A Successful Career.

Dr. Lyon closed with the story of the incidents at the death bed of Pleasantry, the evangelist, whose strength was sapped from his body by a strenuous evangelistic campaign in Seattle. With his singer, Charlie Butler, at his bedside, Pleasantry asked that Butler sing "Shadows" (the song which was rendered most impressively by Mrs. Powell earlier in last evening's program). "And Charlie Butler stood there as his friend's breath was growing short and his eyes were growing glazed in death, and his voice almost choked with sobs as he sang the words of that song—

"When I cross the river, There will be no shadows, Related Dr. Lyon, 'Then Pleasantry looked up and said, 'Praise God, it is true, friends. Praise God, it is true. I am dying. I can feel the breath of heaven blowing on my face. Good-bye, Praise God, there are no shadows.'"

"My friends, can you say that?" cried Dr. Lyon, as the tears streamed down his cheeks, and as he commenced the half hour after service, it was noticed that there were few in the large audience who did not show like evidences of having followed with their conscience as well as their hearts the arguments of the evangelist. As the Christians hastened to bring someone to a closer recognition of the Christ, men and women began to leave the ranks of the various delegations and took their stand for the positive Christian life. The season was one of almost spiritual refreshment and was the harbinger of even greater scenes for the closing nights of the Newark campaign. With the spirit of Christ invading the camp of the evil ones in Newark, the city will be saved from eternal doom, and hundreds, if not thousands, should be brought into absolute harmony with the Master before the close of the present week.

Dr. Lyon's gospel is one of great deftness—there is no half way method about it. Unlike "Billy Sunday," who counts as a conversion merely the statement that "I'll live a better life," or "I'll cut out booze," Dr. Lyon bases his campaign upon an out-and-out acceptance of Jesus Christ as Lord and Master in the lives of men. It is a great difference in methods, and while Dr. Lyon's demands seem much harder, they are strictly in accordance with the demands of the scripture, and make for a firmer, more substantial hold upon the principles of Christian life than any more compromising method.

ABSALOM'S RUIN WAS RESULT OF SELF-LOVE

The story of Absalom and his ruined life proved the means of bringing nearly a score of men and women to a realization of their lost condition with our Christ, in one of the most interesting afternoon meetings of the Lyon campaign yesterday. The audience was comparatively small, and there were few who had not already taken Christ as their Saviour, but the meeting gave to even them an opportunity of showing their love for the Saviour by offering a friendly word of cheer to someone less fortunate in their efforts to find the Master. Dr. Lyon's words had a profound effect on his audience, and will undoubtedly be remembered as one of the most compelling sermons that he has yet delivered.

The brief opening service, conducted by Prof. R. E. Mitchell was another evidence of the fact that the lives of Newark Christians are being awakened in a wonderful way to a working belief in Jesus Christ. "The Old Time Religion" with its swinging camp-meeting strain, caught the fancy of the audience, and they sang it splendidly, making it "good enough" for newspaper men, Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodists and the preachers. It is a great old religion and good enough for anybody that is willing to consider the question of his soul salvation; there is none other like unto it. The audience also sang verses of "It is Glory All the Way," "Tell It Wherever You Go" and a few of the other favorites, and at the close of this brief service of praise, were led in prayer by Rev. Mr. Laughlin.

Mrs. Grace Powell sang "He Will Hold Me Fast," that song of assurance that in the hour of trial, when the dangers of life are besetting one, Christ has the power and is willing to hold His children fast in His embrace, safe from all earthly harm. It is with deep regret that Mrs. Powell's absence will be noted by her friends in Newark, so dearly has she grown to the hearts of those who know her.

Dr. Lyon, just before commencing his discourse, pleaded for more earnestness among the professing Christians. "There are at least five thousand people in this city at this very time on the verge of coming to Jesus Christ. There is only one thing in the way," he said, "and that is the lack of earnestness on the part of our professing Christians. The blessings that we have had thus far have been due not so much to the preaching, but to the personal efforts of the men and women who have been consecrating their lives to the service of God in these meetings."

"And they took Absalom and cast him into a great pit," quoted the evangelist, from 2d Samuel 18:17. "This Bible is a book of biography. Some lives are represented to us for example. Other lives for a warning. Some lives are like light houses shedding forth beautiful divine rays of illumination to show the way into the harbor of safety, and others are like the black buoys that are placed above the rocks to guide all ships from the stones and from the shoals. This 'life of Absalom' was a ruined life: a life not given for an example but a life given for a warning. Absalom's life was one of great possibilities. First of all, he was a great ancestor. He came from the stock of David and the stock of Jesse, the stock of Ruth and Boaz. From the human standpoint the same blood ran in the veins of Absalom as in the veins of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. It is a great thing, friends, to be well-born. Oliver Wendell Holmes says, 'if you want to reform a man begin with his grandmother.' If God has given to you an ancestry whose minds have been pure and whose lives have been clean, thank God for it."

The Jukes Family. "William Dugdale" in his book on "Crimes and Criminology" brings out two types, the first the type of the Jukes family. A drunkard in northern Pennsylvania went to New York City and married a vile woman, and Dugdale traces that family through its ancestry for one hundred years. Of the 1200 offspring in the different branches of the family, he found that these descendants had spent more than 1,400 years in the State's prison, that 42 out of the number had been hung for murder, that more than 200 of the women had been vicious in their lives, that in the prosecution of this one family for crime, it had cost the state of Pennsylvania more than $3,000,000.

"Compare that with the family of Jonathan Edwards, that through its generations produced one vice president, 42 senators and a large number of leading lawyers and physicians and vocation life. Friends, it is a good thing to have a good ancestry, and would that you and I should impress the present generation that they are fixing the fate for the thousands yet unborn."

"Moreover, Absalom was also a man of great personal qualities. We are told in this history that he was a man of a type of physical perfection; from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet there was not a blemish. He was a man of remarkable beauty of face and form. Moreover, he was a man of attractiveness of character. He had a congenial, natural, a warm heart. He was possessed of that peculiar unanalysable element of personal magnetism that won everyone to himself. Moreover he was a man of great opportunities. He had the favor of his father. He would undoubtedly have been placed as king on the throne, yet Absalom's life went out in darkness and despair, and he was buried in a pit."

"What was the cause of his waywardness?" asked the evangelist. "I want to emphasize three things—the cause, the character, and the result. First, the cause of Absalom's waywardness was of malice. He cherished in his heart envy, bitterness and vindictiveness. There is no cancer that will do more deadly destruction in human souls than this moral cancer of unforgiveness and bitterness and malice. There are those undoubtedly in this building that have been harboring in their hearts envy, a grudge, it may be a family quarrel, maybe over the distribution of property. You can never get God's blessing until these things are cast from your heart."

"And, again, the cause of Absalom's waywardness was selfish ambition. Absalom lived for himself. In his pride and egotism he was willing to step over the dead bodies of all his friends and relatives if it could move him to a higher place. There are men that are probably planning for some political position and are unwilling to make me definite, positive stand for Jesus Christ for fear they would have to break with the lawless element of this country, and they are willing to let their political ambitions be the damnation of their souls."

"What are you living for. To please yourself? To advance your own material interests or selfish desires? Or are you going to please Jesus Christ. Right here we are going to draw a sharp contrast between these two blood relatives, Absalom and Jesus Christ, the Son of God, one living for himself, and Absalom was buried in a pit and his name has been a stench in the nostrils of centuries. Jesus lived to please God, and it pleased the Father to highly exalt Him and give Him a name which is above every other name."

Always Find Deceit.

"What were the characteristics of Absalom's life? First, there was the element of deception and deceit. Wherever you find other sins, you will always find deception. If a man lies, if he murders, if he commits adultery, you will always find in a person of that type, one who has the element of deception. There is a woman in this town who is untrue to her husband. When her husband is away on business, she will come to these meetings at night, although she entertains other men in her home. Yet she says, 'I am a Christian.' A liar, a deceiver, a cheat!"

"There is a man who is false to his friends, a man who is untrue to his wife, who is sharp and shrewd in his business transactions, and if you ask him, 'Did you want to be a Christian,' he says, 'I am a Christian. I believe in the things that are good. Deceiving the people of God. My friends, if your life is not right, and you have been saying to these workers and other workers that you are a Christian when you are not, your life is following in the footsteps of Absalom to doom, despair and destruction.'"

"Moreover, Absalom's conscience was stifled. No one becomes a great sinner in a moment. Sin is allowed to come in a small way first, but finally the life becomes dull and deadened. That is the condition of a large share of the people of this city. So long have they been rejecting Jesus Christ, that at last the word of God and the appeal has no influence over their lives."

"Moreover, Absalom evidences the characteristic of ingratitude, the blackest, basest, most damning sin in the catalogue. His father and mother gave him a home, and how did Absalom repay his father for all of his kindness. He turned his back on the father. My friends, are you like Absalom, guilty of that black, base sin of unthankfulness? God has been good to you. He has given you opportunities, homes, friends, possibilities, and yet many of you go to bed at night like cattle in their stalls, without a word of thanksgiving to God. You go to your meals like hogs to a trough, without asking God's blessing on the meal. Forgetful of all His mercies! Unthankfully unholily turning your back upon your best friend, and I believe the remorse of hell is going to be that much the more keen and bitter on account of the realization of the wonderful kindness and mercy and affection of God."

"What would it mean if everyone in Newark would bear witness to the kindness of Jesus Christ; if every one who is on the side of the liquor traffic, of the licentiousness and gambling and lust and selfishness, if all of these powers and possibilities were consecrated to the service of God? It would mean that this city would be united, a city standing upon a hill, that could not be hid, that its influence would be like pure streams of water going out to irrigate the world around about, and as a ray of light shining amid the darkness, to bring hundreds and thousands in other places to Jesus Christ."

"He also meant a broken hearted father," said the speaker. "It's a great deal more honorable in a young man and young woman to stab a parent in the back with a dagger, than by wicked deeds and unkind words to kill that loved one, inch by inch."

"Moreover, we find here presented a ruined life. A life of great powers and great possibilities, going out in blackness of doom and shame and despair. If you wish to show me a picture of a ruin, take me not to the hanging gardens of Babylon, where the owls hoot amid the leafless branches of the trees, take me not to the Parthenon in Athens, or the Coliseum in Rome, but rather show me the ruins of a human soul, a life that might have done much for the honor and welfare and glory of man, that turned his back upon reason, that turned his back upon conscience, upon the mercy of God, and went out in shame and sorrow and despair."

The Wages of Sin.

"What does all this show? It shows to us, first of all, the wages of sin. You cannot sin against God with impunity. Your sin is bound some time, somewhere, to find you out. I see you say that every word that has been uttered tends all over space forever, and that some sound will never cease, just as the ripple that is made on the lake goes on moving across the crest to the farthest shore, so it is that God will bring every word and every thought and every deed into judgment. You can hide your sin from

man, but you cannot hide your sin from God.

"Why is it that there are so many hundreds all about us that say they are going to be a Christian sometime? Its on account of the sin in their lives that they love, and are not willing to forsake. The fate of Absalom shows the deadly, damning result of sin."

"But, moreover, it shows that God is going to triumph anyway. You may think that wrong is going to prosper. You may think that the forces of evil will conquer, but as sure as the sun will rise tomorrow morning, God is going to win. Oh, my friends, God reigns. You may think that wrong is going to prosper, but if you are on the side of vice, on the side of infidelity, on the side of the forces that are opposed to this Bible and Jesus Christ, you are on the side that is going to lose, but if you are on the side of Jesus Christ, on the side of God's Word, on the side of the forces that are working for righteousness, you may be sure that sometime, somewhere, truth is mighty and will prevail."

"This life of Absalom pictures to us the love of a father. Every great man in Old Testament scripture is a type. David, a man after God's own heart, on account of this spirit of filial and fraternal love, love for his son, a love like unto the Heavenly Father. Hear Him as he says, 'Take good care of the young man Absalom.' Is that not a picture of Jesus, the Great Shepherd of the sheep, coming out on the mountain seeking the lost? Is not that a picture of the Father longing for the return of the prodigal son? Yes, see the father, as he waits for news of the battle, anxious for the welfare of his son. Mark the dark contrast of the ingratitude and rebellion of the son and the pure tender love of the father."

"My friends, I believe the heart of Jesus was broken in Gethsemane, because He knew, how I was broken by the sins of a lost world. My friend, are you helping to crucify the Son of God afresh? I wish that some way I might picture to some wayward life this afternoon the strength and the tenderness of the heavenly Father's love. See the father, David, standing in the gate, so expectantly waiting news from the herald, as he asks, 'Is the young man Absalom safe?' God is putting that question to the sons and daughters of Newark this afternoon. My friends, are you safe, safe within the fold, saved from sins forgiven, safe from victory, over sin, saved on account of the mark on your forehead, the unseen mark stamped there by the heavenly Father himself? Are you saved and do you know you are saved? And then the messenger tells him all, but he didn't tell him about the victory. Here is a picture of God hearing of his son's death,—Absalom! As he cries, 'Oh, my son, Absalom! My son, my son Absalom,' would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!"

Would Save Newark.

"What is that a type of? See Jesus Christ weeping over Jerusalem as He is weeping over Newark today. Oh, Newark, Newark, how I would like to have gathered thee as a hen gathereth her brood at night beneath her wings, but you would not."

"Can it be that you are to be left desolate?" asked the evangelist, as he told a story of the "Picture of God." It was the story of the son of a minister who shirked his lessons in school for several days without telling his father. When the news reached the parent's ears he commanded the son to spend three days and three nights up in a little attic room in their home. The son went silently to that upper room, but the father could not rest that night. In the middle of the night, and on the two following nights, he took the pillow from his own bed and went to that little attic chamber, to spend the night on the same bed with that wayward son, and to share the shame and the suffering and sorrow of his son. "With that kind of a father," concluded Dr. Lyon, "do I need to tell you that that son is now a missionary in far off China, and a power for God, heeding up the message of the gospel of Jesus Christ?"

"My friends, that is a picture of God, of your heavenly Father, who in the person of Jesus Christ, came down to suffer shame and disgrace, to die, that you and I might be saved. Come back to that Father, won't you?"

In the few minutes that followed, the Christian workers accepted every opportunity to bring some soul nearer to a true conception of Christ's great love for this sinning world, and it is certain that those who left the building without the assurance of their soul salvation at least had given to them a message which should impel them toward an early acceptance of Christ, and a prompt seeking of the blessings of the salvation He offers.

Hold Splendid Prayer Services in Churches

Inspiring prayer services in the churches allied with the revival movement marked the opening of the Mid-Week Sabbath this morning and scarcely a church failed to receive a splendid attendance. In fact nearly every Protestant church in the city was visited by more than usually their Sunday morning services. Prayers for the salvation of the city and for the advancement of the individual cause of Christ in the individual churches were offered by hundreds throughout the city, and brief addresses made by the pastors of the various churches.

In the Second Presbyterian church Rev. Lewis Earle Lee of Ironton, was in charge of the service, and addressed his congregation for about 15 minutes, while at the Fifth St. Baptist church, Dr. H. O. Rowlands, one of the best known Baptist pastors in the United States and an orator of extensive reputation, arrived in time to say a few words to the Baptists.

Dr. Rowlands will remain at the Baptist church for several weeks, in the absence of a regular pastor, and will be ready and willing to consult with any who desire to affiliate with that body in Christian worship. He was introduced to the local congregation by Dr. Cheney, who was pastor of the local church nearly thirty years ago. The prayer service was led by Rev. O. L. Martin of Kirksville and Rev. L. C. Colburn of Alexandria.

Costs Little, But Does the Work Quickly, or Money Refunded.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You will find that this simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else you ever used. Usually ends a deep seated cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, croup, chest pains, bronchitis and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualic acid and all the natural pine elements which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

man, but you cannot hide your sin from God.

"But, moreover, it shows that God is going to triumph anyway. You may think that wrong is going to prosper. You may think that the forces of evil will conquer, but as sure as the sun will rise tomorrow morning, God is going to win. Oh, my friends, God reigns. You may think that wrong is going to prosper, but if you are on the side of vice, on the side of infidelity, on the side of the forces that are opposed to this Bible and Jesus Christ, you are on the side that is going to lose, but if you are on the side of Jesus Christ, on the side of God's Word, on the side of the forces that are working for righteousness, you may be sure that sometime, somewhere, truth is mighty and will prevail."

The Father's Love.

"This life of Absalom pictures to us the love of a father. Every great man in Old Testament scripture is a type. David, a man after God's own heart, on account of this spirit of filial and fraternal love, love for his son, a love like unto the Heavenly Father. Hear Him as he says, 'Take good care of the young man Absalom.' Is that not a picture of Jesus, the Great Shepherd of the sheep, coming out on the mountain seeking the lost? Is not that a picture of the Father longing for the return of the prodigal son? Yes, see the father, as he waits for news of the battle, anxious for the welfare of his son. Mark the dark contrast of the ingratitude and rebellion of the son and the pure tender love of the father."

"My friends, I believe the heart of Jesus was broken in Gethsemane, because He knew, how I was broken by the sins of a lost world. My friend, are you helping to crucify the Son of God afresh? SICK DAUGHTER NOW WELL

Mrs. C. Cole Tells How Her Daughter Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what your medicine has done for my daughter."

"Before taking your medicine she was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, could not walk but a short distance at a time, and had severe pains in head and limbs. She came very near having nervous prostration. She had begun to cough a good deal and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. 'I cannot find words to express my gratefulness for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for my daughter. She feels and looks like another girl since taking it, and I shall always feel that I owe you a great debt. 'You can use this letter for the benefit of others if you wish, as I shall always recommend your medicines for female troubles.'—Mrs. C. COLE, Fitchville, Ohio.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

JERSEY TRIPLETS NAMED BLESSING

Two Daughters and Son Born to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Blessing Six Months Ago.

seals at 7½, Hazel at 5½ and Helen at 4½. The children are all healthy and are growing. The Blessings have three other children, aged 11, 7 and 3, respectively.

All of the people of Jersey are proud of the Blessing triplets and the good women of Jersey are doing much to relieve the burden of the patient young mother who has her hands full in caring for all of her babies. Mr. Blessing is by no means an object of charity and does not want to be so regarded. He is a stone cutter and cement worker who moved to Jersey two years ago from Columbus.

Mr. Blessing is industrious and does his level best to care for his family. But he realizes that his wife has a good deal to do and appreciates the kindness that is shown by many friends.

Mrs. Beaver of Jersey, who was in town Monday, showed the picture to Mr. Henry Beckman of the Sample Shoe Store, who complimented the babies by sending each a pair of shoes. Mrs. Beaver left a number of the pictures at Norton's book store where they may be purchased for 10 cents each. The 10 cents paid for each picture will be given to Mrs. Blessing.

CAPT. T. A. McCANON AGAIN IN CHARGE OF SALVATION ARMY

Captain Thomas A. McCannon, of the Salvation Army, who was in charge of the local corps several years ago, has again been ordered to take command here to reorganize the work.

On next Wednesday evening, a special three week's campaign will be started. The meetings to be held at the old M. E. church at Fourth and Church streets. These meetings will be in the nature of an old-fashioned camp meeting. A big tent will be pitched in the auditorium of the church.

Captain J. R. Slayton of Zanesville, accompanied by a number of musicians, will be present during the entire campaign. The Captain is a speaker and singer of no mean ability and is a son of Brigadier General Slayton, deceased, of the United States Army.

The indoor meetings will be preceded by street meetings and the music will be made a special feature of the campaign. The work inaugurated by Dr. Lyon will be faithfully continued by the new Salvationists and throughout the coming winter the usual relief work will be carried on. The co-operation and support of all Christians is earnestly solicited by the army officers and all are cordially invited to attend the services.

Disadvantages of Illiteracy.
When a soldier is confined in the guardroom for an offense, a written copy of the crime is invariably handed to the commander of the guard. A corporal having given an order, one of the men seemed disinclined to obey, when, after having rebuked him sharply, he shouted in angry tones: "It's a good job for you, me lad, that I can't spell 'insubordination,' or I'd shove you in the 'olink' (guard-room) sharp."—London Weekly Telegraph.

First United States Stocking Factory.
The first United States stocking factory was set up at Cohoes, New York, in 1832. The machine for knitting was the invention of Lee, an Englishman, who took out a patent in 1589. The Lee machine was introduced in the Colonies during the Revolution, but a sharp Yankee improved on it, and set up the first factory at Cohoes.

William Penn's Sepulcher.
It is in the Church of St. Mary Redcliffe, in Bristol, that the remains of Sir William Penn, father of the proprietor of Pennsylvania, rest. A tablet to his memory has been on the walls of the edifice ever since Sir William's death. Above it are hung his armor, his sword and his flags.

After the Battle.
The Comedian—"From the sounds in your dressing room I judge that you girls had a hair-pulling time." The Rough Soubrette—"Not me. I poked her in the eye. It wouldn't hurt none to pull the hair she wears."—New York Globe.
